Every dentist practising in Australia must be registered with the Dental Board of Australia, and you can check any practitioner on the public register at ahpra.gov.au. We encourage you to look up any health practitioner before treatment, and you are welcome to ask our team if you have questions about how the register works.

What should you ask before treatment?

Before any treatment we recommend you ask:

What is the recommended treatment intended to achieve?

Are there reasonable alternatives, and what are their benefits and limitations?

What do preparation, aftercare and follow-up involve?

What risks apply to my situation, and how long might recovery take?

What will the treatment cost, and can I have a written quote?

We quote before treatment starts so that you are ready to proceed, and results, recovery times and risks vary for each individual.
